Course Description

COMS 580 is a full course. During the first term teams will produce a media-based project and during the second individuals will complete a major research essay. The first week of the class will be devoted to group formation, discussion of group process, elaboration of media and critical research projects, discussion of relevant topics, research methodologies, and issues surrounding format and writing. Both the media project and the paper will be presented to the class at the end of each semester. Student input will be taken into account in the instructor's determination of the final grade for the media projects. Class meetings will include student led discussions of communication, culture and media events and theory.

Additional Information

Due to the nature of team projects students should anticipate costs of approximately $50-$100 for recording media, equipment rentals and services. Some equipment may be available for students' use at the Taylor Family Digital Library at the University of Calgary. There is also editing software available in the Faculty of Arts computer lab (SS 018).

Objectives of the Course

The course will help the student to:

1. Integrate theoretical research and practical experience in media production.
2. Increase understanding of theoretical constructs, methodological approaches and research skills while reflecting upon their value in application to specific productions.
3. Exchange ideas and experiences that will broaden understanding of the field of media production.

Textbooks and Readings

No textbook required. Readings may be assigned according to the project. Recommended reading:

Action Research, 3rd ed., Ernest Stringer, 2007.

Research design: qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods approaches, 3rd ed., John Creswell, 2009

Theories of communication, culture and media are foundational for this course. Students should already be aware of a wide range of theories from previous studies. At a minimum, you should have a good working knowledge of:

Interpersonal and Behavioral theories such as Classical Rhetoric, Social Identity, Expectancy Value, Symbolic Interactionism, Uncertainty Reduction, Cognitive Dissonance, Theories of Attachment and Transportation, Cognitive Psychology, Social Psychology in Virtual Communities, and Captology.

Mass Media / Media in Culture theories that include Agenda Setting, Framing, Cultivation Theory, Dependency Theory, Gatekeeping, Hypodermic Needle, Spiral of Silence, Uses and Gratification, Media Ethics, Subliminal Communication, Theories of Propaganda, and Theories of Persuasion.

Language / Linguistic theories including Language Expectancy Theory, Semiotics and Semantics. The above list is not exhaustive, and the placement of specific theories in the above categories is typical, not absolute. Students are encouraged to use any other theories relevant to their work.

Internet and electronic communication device information

All electronic devices (laptops, cell phones, etc.) should be turned off during class unless alternative arrangements have been made with the instructor.

Assignments and Evaluation

Weight	Course components (with hypothetical examples only)	Due
5%	In-class Theory Presentations (on going)	Sept.19 – Nov. 21
5%	Media Project Proposal	Sept. 26
10%	Group Mid-term Production Status Meeting	Nov. 7
30%	Media Project	Nov. 28 or Dec. 5
5%	Paper Proposal	Jan. 16
5%	Paper Outline	Jan. 30
10%	Rough Draft	Mar. 6
30%	Research Paper	April 10

During the Fall term (September 19 – November 21) each student will prepare an individual 15 to 20 minute in-class theory presentation. The presentation will allow the student to share with the class a communications, culture, or media theory of their choosing. They will define and contextualize the theory, sharing relevant points with the class, and ultimately lead the class in a discussion about the theory. Applicable and current examples should be included. Students are also encouraged to explain the theory with support of media and/or related tools. Presenters are asked to prepare 3 questions related to their presentation and/or topic for class discussion.

Further, students will produce a media-based group project (due on November 28 or December 5) that will demonstrate both scholarly and practical skills. The group project allows students to explore theories and issues and put them into a practical setting. Ultimately, the success of the projects depends on the dialogue created between the group participants and the larger class.

Media project proposals will be pitched to the class for feedback on September 26. Mid-term production status meetings will take place on November 7. Final projects will be presented in-class on either November 28 or December 5. Group projects are also peer reviewed. Comment forms will be filled out by each student (except the group members presenting) for each presentation. A final mark and report will be prepared by the instructor and given to the group, usually by the next class. The instructor reserves the right to evaluate groups and/or individuals separately.

Students will write an advanced 20-page research paper (due in-class on April 10) showing their ability to define, integrate and expand on culture and/or communications theories. Although there is a significant amount of latitude in the choice of topics, students are expected to engage in an on-going dialogue with the instructor concerning their research and progress. The paper may be written in an “alternate” style, but only after proper justification, appropriate learning outcomes have been identified, and the approval from the instructor. The paper carries high expectations, and should show a considerable level of research.

Paper Proposals will be pitched to the class for feedback on January 16. The research paper outline (due in-class on January 30) is an abstract, with an annotated bibliography of a minimum of 3 sources. The abstract will cogently describe the subject of your paper in a minimum of 150 words. It should describe your aim in a clear thesis statement and how you will go about making the argument. The annotated bibliography should be included below your abstract. Each source should clearly be relevant to your paper. If your literature review did not supply relevant sources, do not include them. Each annotation of a source should do two things: give the reader an idea of the overall content of the book or article and its significance, as well as briefly describe the source’s relevance for the paper you are proposing.

The outlines will be peer reviewed in class, please bring 2 copies of your research paper outline to share with your peer reviewers on January 30th. Peer review worksheets must be completely filled out and attached to the rough draft in order to receive peer reviewed outline marks.

The research paper outline should:

1. Be a minimum of 150 words and no more than 250;
2. Include a thesis statement;
3. Convey how you will go about making your argument;
4. Exhibit your knowledge based on your initial research.

The research paper outline annotated bibliography should:

1. Include a minimum of 3 relevant and authoritative sources (one from an on-line source; a book; and a journal article.);
2. Include an annotation for each source;
 - i) Convey the overall content of the source
 - ii) Describe the relevance of the source for the argument you will be making;
3. Be properly formatted as an APA, MLA, Chicago, etc. annotated bibliography.

The rough draft (due in-class on March 6) 6-page minimum, should convey that you are prepared, capable and on track to finish and submit the final paper by the deadline. The draft should include a bibliography of at least 5 specialized sources at this point (i.e. not dictionaries, encyclopedias, or general textbooks). There is no maximum, but preferably no more than three (3) are on-line specialized sources (i.e. not dictionaries, encyclopedias). Peer review worksheets must also be completely filled out and attached to the rough draft in order to receive peer reviewed outline marks.

All assignments must be completed or a grade of F may be assigned at the discretion of the instructor.

Registrar-scheduled Final Examination: No

All assignments and exams must be completed or a course grade of F may be assigned at the discretion of the instructor.

Submission of Assignments:

Please hand in your essays directly to your tutor or instructor if possible. If it is not possible to do so, a daytime drop box is available in SS320; a date stamp is provided for your use. A night drop box is also available for after-hours submission. Assignments will be removed the following morning, stamped with the previous day's date, and placed in the instructor's mailbox.

Please include your name and ID number on all assignments, and be prepared to provide picture ID to pick up assignments or look at marked final exams in SS 320. Personal information is collected in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy (FOIP) Act. For more information, see <http://www.ucalgary.ca/legalservices/foip/foip-hia>

Note: It is the student's responsibility to keep a copy of each submitted assignment and to ensure that the proper version is submitted (particularly in courses requiring electronic submission). Including a version date in your file name may be useful.

Policy for Late Assignments

Assignments submitted after the deadline may be penalized with the loss of a grade (e.g.: A- to B+) for each day late.

Student Accommodations:

Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services; SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For additional information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/.

Students who require an accommodation in relation to their coursework based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor. The full policy on Student Accommodations is available at <http://www.ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf>.

- Students seeking accommodation for transient illnesses (e.g., the flu) should contact their instructors. Whenever possible, students should advise their instructors in advance if they will be missing quizzes, presentations, in-class assignments, or group meetings.
- When accommodations are granted, they may take forms other than make-up tests or assignments. For example, the weight of a missed grade may be added to another assignment or test.
- For information on Deferrals of Final Exams and Term Work, see sections G.6 and G.7 of the University Calendar at <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/g6.html> and

<http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/g-7.html>

Writing Skills Statement

Department policy directs that all written assignments (including, to a lesser extent, written exam responses) will be assessed at least partly on writing skills. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization. Sources used in research papers must be properly documented. If you need help with your writing, you may use the Writing Centre. Visit the website for more details: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing-support>

Grading System & Department of Communication, Media and Film

Work in this course will be graded using letter grades. The following grade scale percentage equivalents are used in the Department of Communication, Media and Film.

2.30		C+	65 - 69.99%	67.5%
2.00	Satisfactory—basic understanding of the subject matter.	C	60 - 64.99%	62.5%
1.70		C-	55 - 59.99%	57.5%
1.30	Minimal pass—marginal performance; generally insufficient preparation for subsequent courses in the same subject	D+	53 - 54.99%	54.0%

* If percentages are used to calculate final grades, then grades falling within these ranges will be translated to the corresponding letter grades.

 These percentage equivalents will be used for calculating final grades unless an alternative method of final grade calculation is outlined above.

Plagiarism

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university.

You must document not only direct quotations but also paraphrases and ideas where they appear in your text. A reference list at the end is insufficient by itself. In-text citations must be provided, and readers must be able to tell exactly where your words and ideas end and other people's words and ideas begin. Wording taken directly from a source must be enclosed within quotation marks (or, for long quotations, presented in the format prescribed by the documentation style you are using). Paraphrased information must not follow the original wording and sentence structure with only slight word substitutions here and there. These requirements apply to all assignments and sources, including those in non-traditional formats such as Web pages or visual media.

For information on citation and documentation styles (including APA, Chicago, IEEE, MLA, and others), visit the links provided at <https://ucalgary.ca/ssc/resources/writing-support/436> . If you have questions about how to document sources, please consult your instructor or the Writing Centre (3rd Floor TFDL, <http://www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing-support>).

Academic Misconduct

For information on academic misconduct and its consequences, please see the University of Calgary Calendar at <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k.html>

Research Ethics

Whenever you perform research with human participants (i.e. surveys, interviews, observation) as part of your university studies, you are responsible for following university research ethics guidelines. Your instructor must review and approve of your research plans and supervise your research. For more information about your research ethics responsibilities, see <http://arts.ucalgary.ca/research/resources/ethics>
