Course Description

Critical study of contemporary topics or issues related to communications media, technology, culture, or discourse.

This course critically examines representations of race and racialized identities in Canadian and American media cultures. Students are introduced to critical race and intersectional feminist frameworks for analyzing representations, programming policy, and mediated practices generated within "post-racial" cultural contexts. The class also specifically considers the circulation of racialized discourses in digital culture(s), as well as anti-racist activism. Examples from political and popular cultures will be used to illustrate these issues and debates.

Additional Information

Please note that we will be studying some challenging material in this course that may involve coarse language, discussion of racist rhetoric and white supremacy, discriminatory practices, and depictions of racialized violence.

This course offers a combination of lecture, class discussion, and small group discussion.

Coming to class having read the assigned readings and prepared to discuss the material in a respectful, informed manner is essential to success in this course.

The weekly schedule of topics and readings can be found at the end of this outline or on D2L. Students are responsible for reading and following all course and university policies discussed in this outline.

This course contains both synchronous and asynchronous course components (detailed in the schedule of activities below). The class meets synchronously every Thursday throughout the term. Office hours will be held via Zoom; contact the instructor to make an appointment.

Objectives of the Course

The course objectives are to:

- identify media practices and discourses that shape perceptions;
- recognize power relationships, including the relative privilege or marginalization of social groups, including one's own;
- understand how notions of race have been defined and shaped in mediated forms;
- demonstrate this understanding through identification and analysis of contemporary and historical media examples, current events, and controversies.

Textbooks and Readings

A digital course pack has been prepared and will be made available on the COMS 401 L01 course website.

Learning Technologies and Requirements & Policy on the Use of Electronic Communication Devices

This is an online course. In order to complete online (or blended) courses, University of Calgary students are required to have reliable access to the following technology:

- A computer with a supported operating system, as well as the latest security and malware updates, with current antivirus software enabled;
- Broadband internet connection, and a current and updated web browser;
- A webcam (built-in or external);
- A microphone and speaker (built-in or external), or headset with microphone.

Most current laptops will have a built-in webcam, speaker and microphone. If you need access to other software programs to complete assignments, your instructor will provide relevant information and links.

If you have technical difficulties, contact the university's IT department. For more information, see <https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/student-campus-services-information-technologies-it.html>

Instructors may arrange to record synchronous zoom class sessions for lesson capture; however, students are not to share recordings with others. Please carefully review the section on Instructor Copyright at the end of this outline.

Email

When corresponding with the instructor via email, students should include the course name (ex. COMS 401 or RRM) in the subject line. If you do not include the course name in your email's subject line, your message may get overlooked in the instructor's inbox and go unread. Please maintain a respectful tone in your correspondence with the instructor.

Email is most useful for short, specific inquiries. If you have more detailed questions on the course material, assignments, or grades, please contact the instructor about arranging a Zoom appointment during her office hours.

The instructor will respond to emails during the week, usually on a first-come, first-served basis. Emails sent in the evening or on weekends will not be read (or replied to) until the next working day.

Assignments and Evaluation

Weight	Assessed Components	Due
20%	Ongoing Conversations During synchronous Zoom sessions, students will be provided discussions prompts related to that week’s topic(s) for small group conversation. These ongoing conversations will take place in break-out rooms. Each student will complete a “conversation tracker” sheet, documenting the date of the conversation, the classmates spoken with, and some bullet-point notes about what they covered. Each student is responsible for updating their conversation tracker every session, and for submitting their tracker to D2L Dropbox each week (due: Friday, 5pm). Each documented conversation in the tracker is worth 2.5 points (to a max of 20 points).	Weekly, except for Oct. 22 & Nov. 26
25%	Ignite Presentation For this assignment, students will work in groups to create and deliver a 10-slide, 10 minute Ignite presentation that will be delivered during one of our synchronous Zoom sessions. The slides will advance every 1 minute, forcing speakers to make their point quickly. The presentation will explore an idea, theory or concept from the week’s reading or lecture in relation to a media example, current event, or relevant historical example. The presentation must also include two discussion questions for the class. Groups will be formed during the second week of class. NOTE: Groups must receive topic approval by the Monday prior to their presentation date (5% of grade).	TBD
Media Analysis Essay The main piece of writing for this course is an 8-10 page (2500 word) essay that analyzes a media artifact from a critical race/feminist perspective. “Media artifact” can refer to any of a wide variety of cultural objects, including videos, advertisements, film, a meme or hashtag, or even product packaging. The artifact can be activist media or otherwise “critical” of racial politics in its self-presentation, or not.

Your task is to analyze the artifact drawing on the tools of critical media analysis and racial politics developed in this course. Your paper must explain and argue a thesis (that is, it must have a point to demonstrate). Ideally, your thesis will investigate the construction of racialized identity (-ies) or racial politics, as manifested by your chosen artifact. You must use at least two readings from the course and two external scholarly sources. The assignment will be completed in four steps:
5%	Essay Brainstorm Session Synchronous class time will be given for students to work in groups to develop their essay topic ideas in advance of the proposal submission. This interactive session requires that students come prepared with a rough draft of their essay proposal and be ready to discuss their ideas (ex. solicit feedback, answer and ask questions) with a small group of peers. Assessment: Students will submit their proposal rough draft to the Instructor via D2L Dropbox to evidence their preparation for the session (2.5 points). Students will also submit peer feedback about the group session (2.5 points).	Oct. 22
10%	Proposal & Bibliography Submit a 2-3 page essay proposal that describes your essay topic in concise, theoretically informed terms. In the proposal, you must present a clear research question, propose a preliminary thesis statement that answers the research question, and briefly describe how your chosen media example will illustrate or support your argument. You must also identify 3 main areas (or sub-arguments) to be addressed in the analysis. These should stem from ideas and concepts discussed in the assigned course readings. Your proposal must be accompanied by a bibliography of four, relevant academic sources – two of which are from the course. You will not receive credit for Wikipedia entries, popular and/or news stories (although you may include those, as they pertain to your project). The bibliography is not included in the page count for this assignment.	Nov. 5
10%	Work-in-Progress Workshop Synchronous class time will be provided for sharing and discussing a draft version of your final paper in peer groups. For this session, students should complete a full rough draft (intro, body, conclusion, bibliography) of their final essay and have it on hand to discuss. Submit one copy of the rough draft to the instructor via D2L Dropbox. The draft will be evaluated for its level of completeness and overall quality (more details to be provided in class). NOTE: Workshop attendance is important, as part of your grade is based on your attendance and participation.	Nov. 26

30%	Final Essay Submission The final essay is the culmination of your media analysis, stemming from the proposal, essay draft, and feedback received during the workshop from your peers. The final essay must be 8-10 pages in length, double-spaced (Times New Roman font), and include a complete bibliography. Both the essay and the bibliography must be properly formatted using MLA or APA style guides (see “Plagiarism” section below for links to online citation style guides).	Dec. 8

Student Accommodations

Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services (SAS); SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/. Students who require an accommodation based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor. The full policy on Student Accommodations is available at <http://www.ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf>.

Students seeking accommodation for transient illnesses (e.g., the flu) or another legitimate reason should contact their instructors. Whenever possible, students should provide supporting documentation to support their request; however, instructors may not require that a medical note be presented. For the policy on supporting documentation the use of a statutory declaration, see Section M.1 of the University Calendar: <https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html>. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization and proper documentation of research sources. For further information, please refer to the University of Calgary Calendar section on writing across the curriculum: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html>

Grading & Department of Communication, Media and Film Grade Scale

The following table outlines the grade scale percentage equivalents used in the Department of Communication, Media and Film. Final grades are reported as letter grades. For components graded using percentages or numerical scores, those values will be used directly in calculating the final course grade, while for components graded using letter grades, the letter grades will be converted to the midpoint values listed in the final column of the table below in calculating the final course grade.

In this course, point scores will be used for workshops, presentations, and ongoing conversations, while percentage grade will be used for the essay proposal and final essay.

Column 5: These percentage equivalents will be used for calculating final grades unless an alternative method of final grade calculation is outlined above.

Plagiarism

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university. These requirements apply to all assignments and sources, including those in non-traditional formats such as Web pages or visual media.

You must document not only direct quotations but also paraphrases and ideas where they appear in your text. A reference list at the end is insufficient by itself. In-text citations must be provided, and readers must be able to tell exactly where your words and ideas end and other people's words and ideas begin. Wording taken directly from a source must be enclosed within quotation marks (or, for long quotations, presented in the format prescribed by the documentation style you are using). Paraphrased information must not follow the original wording and sentence structure with only slight word substitutions here and there.

For information on citation and documentation styles (MLA, APA, Chicago, IEEE, etc.), visit the Student Success Centre resource links at <https://ucalgary.ca/student-services/student-success/writing-support> or the Purdue Online Writing Lab (OWL) Research and Citation Resources at https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/research_and_citation/resources.html
