Course Description
This course introduces students to the critical perspectives and practices of feminist studies of media cultures. As an interdisciplinary field, we will employ insights from cultural studies, film and television studies, women’s and gender studies, queer studies, disability studies, and critical race studies to interrogate the ways in which gendered, racialized and sexualized subjectivities are produced, circulated and consumed through (primarily) North American media cultures. A range of media texts, including television shows, films, music videos, ‘zines, selfies, and celebrities will be used as case studies to explore the relationship between power, media, and our identities. Additionally, the course will teach students to critically assess feminist media studies as a politicized practice, and students will reflect on the politics of doing feminist research in the field of media studies.

Additional Information
- The weekly schedule of topics and readings can be found at the end of this outline or on D2L.
- Students are responsible for reading and following all course and university policies discussed in this outline.
- This class is premised on the active participation of students. As such, regular attendance is expected and is essential for success in this course.
- During the course of the semester we will be discussing difficult topics, including sexual violence, racism, and other types of oppression. Please see the professor if you require assistance in dealing with this material.

Objectives of the Course
By the end of this course, students will be able to:
- Understand the history of feminist media studies as an evolving scholarly field
• Articulate key theoretical and methodological frameworks for studying media cultures from a feminist perspective

• Analyze the ways in which gendered, racialized and sexualized subjectivities are produced, circulated and consumed through media cultures

• Interrogate the ways in which their own identities shape their engagement with media culture

• Develop both verbal and written analytic skills needed for advanced undergraduate study

Textbooks and Readings
There is one required reader for this course, available at the U of C bookstore and Amazon: Harvey, Alison. 2019. Feminist Media Studies. Cambridge: Polity.

All other readings will be available on D2L.

Learning Technologies and Requirements
In order to complete courses, University of Calgary students are required to have reliable access to the following technology:

• A computer with a supported operating system, as well as the latest security and malware updates, with current antivirus software enabled;
• Broadband internet connection, and a current and updated web browser;
• A webcam (built-in or external), and a microphone and speaker (built-in or external) or headset with microphone (for online courses only).

If you need access to other software programs to complete assignments, your instructor will provide relevant information and links.

If you have technical difficulties, contact IT support services. See https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/student-campus-services-information-technologies-it.html

Policy on the Use of Electronic Communication Devices
I encourage you to bring your laptop or tablet to lectures for note-taking purposes. Occasionally, you may be asked to use your device for an in-class exercise. However, students who are distracting their peers through the use of their computer/tablet/phone for purposes not related to class will be asked to leave.

No audio or video recording of any kind is allowed in class without the permission of the professor Please familiarize yourself with the University’s policy on the recording of lectures, which is outlined at https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-6.html, and carefully review the section on Instructor Copyright at the end of this outline.
Email policy
Before emailing me, please check that the answer to your question is not in the course syllabus! I aim to answer all email inquiries as soon as possible, but will not reply to emails in the evening or over the weekend. When sending me an email, please specify what course you are in (COMS 479) and include a clear statement of purpose in the subject line. Always be professional and courteous in your emails to me and your teaching assistants. If you want to discuss an assignment or a concern about the course I prefer to meet in person during office hours, as these meetings are often more fruitful than a lengthy email exchange. I encourage you to use my office hours, and hope to meet many of you there throughout the semester.

Respect and Diversity in the Classroom
This course is built around student participation. Lecture periods often contain opportunity for student contributions and I welcome your insightful comments (based on course materials) and questions. During these discussion periods I ask that students be respectful of diverse viewpoints; however, racist, sexist, homophobic, Islamophobic, and other types of discriminatory comments are not permitted in the classroom. Comments of this nature will be dealt with at the professor’s discretion on an individual basis.

On pronouns: I respect all students’ pronouns. Please alert me to your pronoun and I am happy to oblige.

| 40% | Making Feminist Media Project/Paper: For the final project, each student will produce a piece of feminist media and an accompanying reflection paper (5 pages). Students may choose to make: a blog/website, social media account, short film, podcast, art piece, ‘zine, song, etc. The media created must engage with course content; students will have the opportunity to highlight the connections between their project and course content in the accompanying reflection paper. Each component (media and paper) is worth 20% each, for a total of 40% for the entire assignment. Both components of the assignment must be submitted together before the deadline. Further information on this assignment will be provided in class in January. |
| 10% | Participation: This course is discussion-based, with minimal lecturing from the professor. As such, it is imperative for students to come to class prepared having read the assigned readings. Participation grade will be based upon a student’s contributions to class discussions, both in terms of quantity and quality. Missing too many classes (4 or more, which is 20% of the class) will negatively affect one’s participation grade as it is impossible to contribute if you are not present! Accommodations will be made for illness, using the designated CMF accommodations coordinator. | Monday April 11 |

Registrar-scheduled Final Examination: No

Note: You must complete all assignments and exams or a course grade of F may be assigned at the discretion of the instructor.

Submission of Assignments
Please submit all assignments to the designated D2L dropbox. Include your name and ID number on all assignments. Be sure to keep a copy of each submitted assignment and to submit the proper version.

Private information related to individual students is treated with the utmost regard by University of Calgary faculty. Student assignments will be accessible only by the authorized course faculty, and personal information is collected in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy (FOIP) Act. Please note that instructors may use audio or video recording for lesson capture, assessment of student learning, and self-assessment of teaching practices.
Policy for Late Assignments
Assignments submitted after the deadline may be penalized with the loss of 5% or a partial letter grade (e.g.: A- to B+) for each day late.

Student Accommodations
Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services (SAS); SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/. Students who require an accommodation based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor. For the full policy on Student Accommodations, see https://www.ucalgary.ca/legal-services/university-policies-procedures/student-accommodation-policy

Students seeking accommodation for transient illnesses (e.g., the flu) or another legitimate reason should contact their instructors. Whenever possible, students should provide supporting documentation to support their request; however, instructors may not require a medical note. For information on the use of a statutory declaration, see the University Calendar: https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html

Expectations for Writing
Department policy directs that all written assignments and, to a lesser extent, written exam responses be assessed at least partly on writing skills. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization and proper documentation of research sources. For further information, please refer to the University of Calgary Calendar section on writing across the curriculum: http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html

Grading & Department of Communication, Media and Film Grade Scale
The following table outlines the grade scale percentage equivalents used in the Department of Communication, Media and Film. Final grades are reported as letter grades. For components graded using percentages or numerical scores, those values will be used directly in calculating the final course grade, while for components graded using letter grades, the letter grades will be converted to the midpoint values listed in the final column of the table below in calculating the final course grade.

In this course, letter grades will be used for the final project and group presentation. Percentage/numerical grades will be used for quizzes and participation grades.

Plagiarism
Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university. These requirements apply to all assignments and sources, including those in non-traditional formats such as Web pages or visual media.

You must document not only direct quotations but also paraphrases and ideas where they appear in your text. A reference list at the end is insufficient by itself. In-text citations must be provided, and readers must be able to tell exactly where your words and ideas end and other people’s words and ideas begin. Wording taken directly from a source must be enclosed within quotation marks (or, for long quotations, presented in the format prescribed by the documentation style you are using). Paraphrased information must not follow the original wording and sentence structure with only slight word substitutions here and there.

For information on citation and documentation styles (MLA, APA, Chicago, IEEE, etc.), visit the Student Success Centre resource links at https://ucalgary.ca/student-services/student-success/writing-support or the Purdue Online Writing Lab (OWL) Research and Citation Resources at https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/research_and_citation/resources.html

Whenever you perform research with human participants, including surveys, interviews, or observations as part of your university studies, you are responsible for obtaining research ethics approval and for following university research ethics guidelines. In some cases, your instructors may apply for course-based research ethics approval for certain assignments, and in those cases, they must review and approve your research plans and supervise your research.
