Course Description
In this course, students will critically examine a series of film cultures that expand beyond the canon of Hollywood and Western European cinema. We will explore regional and national cinemas from Africa, Asia, Latin America, India, and Eastern Europe, analyzing their historical contexts of production and formal conventions. The course will also open students onto broader global perspectives by mapping the ways in which national cinemas participate in transnational networks of production, circulation, and exhibition.

Rather than exploring any one national cinema in depth, our objective will be to consider particular national cinemas as sites to engage with the key themes, questions, and debates that constitute the discourse of world cinema: national allegory, the tension between the local and globalization, film festivals and transnational forms of branding, genre and authorship, the question of the “popular”, and the philosophical distinctions between the world, the earth, and the planet.

Additional Information
The weekly schedule of topics and readings can be found at the end of this outline and on D2L.

Objectives of the Course
Following the completion of this course, students should be able to:
- Identify key debates within the scholarship on world cinema.
- Demonstrate a more globally inclusive understanding of tendencies and movements across film history.
- Make connections across various national cinemas through considering transnational questions of marketing and circulation.
- Enhance their philosophical understanding of how cinema thinks the world.
- Perform critical analyses and write well-crafted arguments about visual culture.
Textbooks and Readings
All assigned readings for the course will be uploaded to D2L.

Learning Technologies and Requirements
In order to complete courses, University of Calgary students are required to have reliable access to the following technology:

Participation (10%)
Since this class involves both challenging films and ideas, attendance, class participation, and completion of the readings are absolutely necessary. Lecture content will usually move beyond the week’s assigned readings, so students will need to have read the required materials by the Friday lecture in order for the class experience to remain meaningful. Class participation grades will be evaluated based on the quality of your contributions to in-class discussions and the completion of short in-class assignments.

Short Essay (25%)
Students will submit a short research essay on February 11th (5 pages long), in which they find and analyze a film related to one of the film movements or theoretical problems covered in class. For example, students may choose either a film by an auteur or belonging to a genre discussed in lecture. Conversely, they may choose a film that illuminates one of the theoretical problems relevant to world cinema, such as national allegory. Students will be required to both find one academic source on their chosen film and refer to one of the assigned readings of their chosen week. Ultimately, the goal of this assignment is to give students a deeper understanding of a national film context and its implications for world cinema.

Cinemas of Global Solidarity Response (25%)
On March 4th, our class will host a conference (online) featuring leading scholars in the field of film and media studies. Students are required to attend one full panel (three talks) scheduled during our normal class hours for which they will receive an automatic grade of 10%. Subsequently, they will have one week to write a three-page response to one of the talks, drawing on two of the required or recommended readings from the course. The response will be graded out of 15%.

Quiz (10%)
On March 28th, there will be a brief in-class quiz, which will cover the lectures and readings from the period between March 7th until March 21st. Students will have thirty minutes to answer ten multiple choice questions. The quiz is open book, but students may not consult each other.

Final Essay (35%)
An assignment sheet on the final paper will be given out on November 7. The essay will be 8 pages, double-spaced, and is due on April 11 at the beginning of class.

*Note: Each written assignment will be accompanied by a rubric and instruction sheet on D2L

Registrar-scheduled Final Examination: No.

Note: You do not have to complete all the assignments and exams in order to receive a passing grade in this course.

Submission of Assignments
Please submit all assignments in class or by uploading them to the designated D2L dropbox. Include your name and ID number on all assignments. Be sure to keep a copy of each submitted assignment and to submit the proper version.

Private information related to individual students is treated with the utmost regard by University of Calgary faculty. Student assignments will be accessible only by the authorized course faculty, and personal information is collected in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy (FOIP) Act. Please note that instructors may use audio or video recording for lesson capture, assessment of student learning, and self-assessment of teaching practices.

Policy for Late Assignments
Assignments submitted after the deadline may be penalized with the loss of 5% or a partial letter grade (e.g.: A- to B+) for each day late.

Student Accommodations
Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services (SAS); SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/. Students who require an accommodation based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor. For the full policy on Student Accommodations, see https://www.ucalgary.ca/legal-services/university-policies-procedures/student-accommodation-policy

Students seeking accommodation for transient illnesses (e.g., the flu) or another legitimate reason should contact their instructors. Whenever possible, students should provide supporting documentation to support their request; however, instructors may not require a medical note. For information on the use of a statutory declaration, see the University Calendar: https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html

Expectations for Writing
Department policy directs that all written assignments and, to a lesser extent, written exam responses be assessed at least partly on writing skills. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization and proper documentation of research sources. For further information, please refer to the University of Calgary Calendar section on writing across the curriculum: http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html

Grading & Department of Communication, Media and Film Grade Scale
The following table outlines the grade scale percentage equivalents used in the Department of Communication, Media and Film. Final grades are reported as letter grades. For components graded using percentages or numerical scores, those values will be used directly in calculating the final course grade, while for components graded using letter grades, the letter grades will be converted to the midpoint values listed in the final column of the table below in calculating the final course grade.

In this course, letter grades will be used for written assignments, while percentage or numerical grades will be used for quizzes and participation grades.

Plagiarism

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university. These requirements apply to all assignments and sources, including those in non-traditional formats such as Web pages or visual media.

You must document not only direct quotations but also paraphrases and ideas where they appear in your text. A reference list at the end is insufficient by itself. In-text citations must be provided, and readers must be able to tell exactly where your words and ideas end and other people’s words and ideas begin. Wording taken directly from a source must be enclosed within quotation marks (or, for long quotations, presented in the format prescribed by the documentation style you are using). Paraphrased information must not follow the original wording and sentence structure with only slight word substitutions here and there.

For information on citation and documentation styles (MLA, APA, Chicago, IEEE, etc.), visit the Student Success Centre resource links at https://ucalgary.ca/student-services/student-success/writing-support or the Purdue Online Writing Lab (OWL) Research and Citation Resources at https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/research_and_citation/resources.html

Research Ethics
Whenever you perform research with human participants, including surveys, interviews, or observations as part of your university studies, you are responsible for obtaining research ethics approval and for following university research ethics guidelines. In some cases, your instructors may apply for course-based research ethics approval for certain assignments, and in those cases, they must review and approve your research plans and supervise your research.
